

2024 ECOSOC Youth Forum
"Youth shaping sustainable and innovative solutions:
Reinforcing the 2030 Agenda and eradicating poverty in times of crises"

IDENTIFICATION
Session title	Progressing from poverty to prosperity: Youth as agents of change
Session focus	SDG1
Session leads	UNDP and Global Youth Caucus for Decent Jobs and Sustainable Economies
Session co-organizers	UN Women and Migration Youth and Children Platform
BACKGROUND & KEY ISSUES
According to the latest SDG report¹, if current trends persist, 575 million people, equivalent to 7 percent of the global population, will continue to endure extreme poverty, mainly in sub-Saharan Africa. The Global Multidimensional Poverty Index² reveals that out of 1.1 billion poor people, 566 million are children and adolescents under 18, highlighting the disproportionate impact of poverty on youth who are frequently caught in a cycle of societal and political exclusion, voicelessness, and vulnerability to violence and insecurity. Despite progress in reducing extreme poverty from 10.8 percent in 2015 to 8.4 percent in 2019³, the COVID-19 pandemic disrupted this positive trend and widened existing inequalities. In particular, it is estimated that by 2030 more than 340 million women and girls — around 8 percent of the world’s female population— will live in extreme poverty⁴, and only one-third of countries will halve their national poverty levels.⁵ Multidimensional poverty, often associated with hunger, homelessness, health disparities, forced displacement and educational challenges, has a long-lasting impact on children and youth worldwide. Inadequate coverage of social protection programs disproportionately affects the younger generation. Conflicts, disrupted global trade, forced displacement and climate change exacerbate living costs, negatively impacting young people, who are three times more likely to experience unemployment,⁶ and remain an obstacle threatening the pillars of development. Gender disparities further compound these challenges, with young women and girls facing intersecting forms of discrimination that limit their access to education, healthcare, and economic opportunities. Young people frequently inherit poverty and have limited earning and learning opportunities to break this intergenerational poverty cycle, characterized by deficiencies in essential capabilities needed for a dignified life.

Addressing the unique needs of young people, particularly in times of crises, and recognizing and leveraging their skills, experience, and immense potential is essential for achieving sustainable and inclusive development and advancing SDG 1 globally. Therefore, this session aims to:

- Highlight the urgent need for targeted interventions to address the root causes of multidimensional poverty, with a focus on leveraging collective intelligence for building resilience, empowering young people as catalysts for change, and co-creating solutions with youth and for youth.
- Discuss challenges and opportunities, barriers and tools, for inclusive eradication of poverty that reverses indignity and denial of basic human rights and showcase innovative approaches and promising practices from youth-led initiatives worldwide that have successfully tackled poverty and its associated challenges.
- Foster multi-stakeholder collaboration and knowledge-sharing among policymakers, practitioners, and youth advocates to develop effective and sustainable solutions for poverty alleviation, particularly in crisis contexts.
- Advocate for increased investment in youth and gender-focused programmes and integrated policies that prioritize spending on social protection, investments in the green economy and education, healthcare, and better infrastructures to break the intergenerational cycle of poverty.
- Emphasize the importance of mainstreaming youth perspectives and voices in policy formulation and implementation processes at all levels, ensuring their meaningful participation and representation in decision-making fora related to poverty alleviation efforts.
- Call for comprehensive measures to address systemic barriers and structural inequalities that hinder young people's access to opportunities, including but not limited to discrimination based on gender, ethnicity, disability, and socioeconomic status, by promoting inclusive policies and affirmative actions.

SHORT DESCRIPTION OF SPOTLIGHT SEGMENT

The spotlight session titled 'Youth in a World Without Poverty' will feature two short, pre-recorded videos showcasing the latest data and trends on SDG1, as well as young women voices from the Pacific. This will be followed by inspirational spark talks by two young leaders from the Major Group for Children and Youth and the UNDP-Samsung Generation17 Initiative.

OVERVIEW OF PREPARATORY EVENT/CONSULTATION

Young people from around the world had the opportunity to contribute to discussions around SDG 1, multidimensional poverty, gender, education, training and capacity building, access to finance and technology, and the road to the Summit of the Future 2024, during three key moments:

- “Hear our Voice! Young People at the Summit of the Future” global online consultation hosted on SparkBlue from 4 to 22 March 2024 by UNDP, UN Women, MGCY, other UN agencies and the UN Foundation.
- The 68th annual Commission on the Status of Women (CSW68) Virtual Youth Forum hosted by UN Women from 1 to 2 March 2024.
- CSW68 in person Youth Forum from 15 to 17 March 2024, hosted by UN Women in New York.

These consultations highlighted the key role young people play in poverty eradication, their innovative youth-led solutions, the importance of leveraging technology and enhancing access to quality education and funding opportunities, and the importance of meaningful and inclusive engagement, especially involving under-represented groups such as young women and girls, refugees, migrants, indigenous youth and grassroots movements, in fostering innovation and sustainable and inclusive development.
