Poverty, a pronounced deprivation in well-being implying a marginal and fragile living comprises multiple dimensions. Poverty not only includes low incomes leading to scarcity of basic human necessities for a dignified survival but also encompasses low levels of health, education, food, clothing, shelter etc. As a matter of fact nearly half of the world (over 3 billion people) lives on less than $ 2.50 per day. The GDP (Gross Domestic Product) of the 41 heavily indebted countries is less than the combined wealth of seven world's richest people.

Eradication of poverty, in all its existing forms is not merely an indispensable requirement for sustainable worldwide development but is also the greatest global challenge of today. Poverty alleviation, with the purpose of setting the human race free from its tyranny is imperative for global burgeon and buildup.

Various theorists such as neo-liberals, neo-realists, conservationists, idealists etc present multiple opinions regarding the convergent analysis of poverty issue, being the basis of human morality. Today's global humanitarian architecture is strenuously engaged in formulating and revamping policies and stratagem for global opulence, proliferation, peace, equality and justice.

But no such policy or framework and lead rightly unless the eradication of poverty is set as its core objective. Poverty or scarcity of basic living essentials is the root of all emerging issues of present era. Hence overriding poverty needs to be fundamental and constitutive objective concerning policy framing and reform drafting.

All global think tanks including socio-economic policy framers and peace building bodies are busy in modeling rules and policies regarding curtailing nuclear proliferation, Euro Crisis, refugee influx, terrorism etc but the core reason behind all the unrest, uprisings, conflicts that is poverty and lack of resources still remains unaddressed. If poverty and hunger are uprooted most of our global issues can eventually resolve and settle. The need of the hour is to create good jobs, raise wages of laborers, microfinance the poor, create transparency in inter-state spending, provide easy access of health, clean drinking water, eatables, sanitation etc.

In short, eradication of poverty by improving access for the poor to productive resources, basic services of health, education, food, and shelter can lessen human disparities and resultantly upgrade and diversify quality of life of a common man. By this individuals will not betray from right path and involve in unlawful activities. Considering the significance and positivity of poverty elimination it should be kept as a core aim of all policies. Poverty irradiation is the hidden secret behind global peace, harmony, opulence prosperity and progression.
